

Dan Cornelius is the Intertribal Agriculture Council's (IAC) Technical Assistance Specialist for the Great Lakes Region, which includes Wisconsin, Minnesota, Michigan, and Iowa. His position focuses on helping Indian Tribes and Native food producers gain better access to USDA programs, as well as on general food and agricultural issues. Much of his current work centers on strengthening connections and partnerships among the region's food producers and communities, a task highlighted by IAC's Mobile Farmers Market. A graduate of the University Law School and member of the Wisconsin Bar, Mr. Cornelius also has experience in the development of producer cooperatives, supply chain analysis, and legal and policy aspects of food and agriculture.